I have a song called "short fuse." I was just mad that day.

"real life," perhaps, was waiting for me on the other side of the web browser.

Anyone can conduct their own research and see for themselves.

The second question, if even after considering the affect of availability bias, it still seems than artists take drugs more often than average, is to ask about which sens the causality flows.